Q.3 A) Read the following poem and do the activities:

(5)

I know a curious little boy
Who is always asking, "why?"
Why this, why that, why then, why now,
Why not, why by-and-by?

He wants to know why wood should swim,
Why lead and marbles sink;
Why stars should shine and winds should blow,
And why we eat and drink.

He wants to know what makes the clouds,
And why they cross the sky;
Why sinks the sun behind the hills,
And why the flowers die.

He wants to know why wind should come
From out the bellows' nose;
Why pop-guns should go pop and why
The ocean ebbs and flows.

Read the following poem and write an appreciation of it with the help of the points given below.

Truth
Sticks and stones may break my bones, But words can also hurt me. Stones and sticks break only skin, While words are ghosts that haunt me.
Slant and curved the fall word-swords To pierce and stick inside me. Bats and bricks may ache through bones. But words can mortify me.
Pain from words has left its scar On mind and heart that's tender Cuts and bruises now have healed; It's words that I remember.

iv) Doing something in a serious manner

"Dear life and heart," said Marilla blankly, "what does this mean ? Here's my brooch safe and sound that I thought was at the bottom of Barry's pond. Whatever did that girl mean by saying she took it and lost it ? I remember now that when I took off my shawl Monday afternoon I laid it on the bureau for a minute. I suppose the brooch got caught in it somehow. Well !"

Marilla betook herself to Anne's room, brooch in hand. Anne had cried herself out and was sitting dejectedly by the window.

"Anne Shirley," said Marilla solemnly, "I've just found my brooch hanging to my black lace shawl. Now I want to know what that rigmarole you told me this morning meant."

"Why, you said you'd keep me here until I confessed," returned Anne wearily, "and so I decided to confess. I thought out a confession last night after I went to bed and made it as interesting as I could. And I said it over and over so that I wouldn't forget it. But you wouldn't let me go to the picnic after all, so all my trouble was wasted."

Marilla had to laugh in spite of herself. But her conscience pricked her.

"Anne, you do beat all ! But I was wrong... I see that now. I shouldn't have doubted your word when I'd never known you to tell a story. Of course, it wasn't right for you to confess to a thing you hadn't done... it was very wrong to do so. But I drove you to it. So if you'll forgive me, Anne, I'll forgive you and we'll start square again. And now get yourself ready for the picnic.

Anne flew up like a rocket.

"Oh, Marilla," exclaimed Anne, flying to the washstand. "Five minutes ago I was so miserable I was wishing I'd never been born and now I wouldn't change places with an angel !"

A2 i) I was wrong. (Rewrite using the antonym of 'wrong')

ii) I thought out a confession. (Rewrite as present progressive tense)
